Unprecedented innovation in laser technology

With fractional laser resurfacing the laser beam is broken up or fractionated into many small micro beams which are separated so that when they strike the skin surface small areas of the skin between the beams are not hit by the laser and left intact. These small areas of untreated skin promote a much more rapid recovery and healing with less risk of complications. The small areas treated by the fractional micro beams, called micro treatment zones, cause sufficient laser injury to promote new collagen production and resultant facial skin rejuvenation.

Acne scars can be treated with the Fractional CO<sub>2</sub> laser in order to help resurface and recontour atrophic scars of the face, chest, and back. The fractional CO<sub>2</sub> laser has been used effectively in many countries to resurface acne scars and post-traumatic scars of the face and body.
